

College Program for Students with Autism Spectrum Disorder at Concord University Application

Admission to the College Program for Students with Autism Spectrum Disorder does not guarantee admission to Concord University, as applications to the university and to the college support program are separate processes. If possible, complete the application in your own handwriting. If handwriting presents a challenge, you may type your responses.

Please note: Applications are accepted only for fall terms. Applications are not accepted for the spring semester.

Applicants who wish to be considered for the Fall, 2018 semester should return the completed application no later than April 1, 2018.

An application to the support program is considered “complete” and will be accepted only if it includes:

- A clinical psychological evaluation (school-based, or psycho-educational evaluations, will not be accepted) dated within three years of this application;
- The results from an intelligence evaluation, such as the WAIS-III , accompanied by subtest scores and a detailed, narrative report;
- Results from achievement testing (for example, the Woodcock-Johnson Achievement and the Peabody Individual Achievement tests);
- The most recent IEP, if one is in place for a current student.
- For students who have previous college experience: an unofficial transcript from that institution, or other documents that detail classes taken and grades earned.

Each completed application will be reviewed thoroughly by staff to ensure all University and College Program requirements are met. Those applicants who do meet the requirements—and who have documentation that suggests the College Program may be a good fit for their specific needs—may be invited to campus for a face-to-face interview. Based upon that interview and the information gathered from the application process, some prospective students will be invited into the College Program for Students with Autism Spectrum Disorder at Concord University. Formal notification of the decision will be made by mail.

When completed, please return this application to:
